Course Details

This qualification provides a pathway to a career in the creative fields.

There are limited job outcomes at this level, though in areas such as graphic design and screen and media there may be some employment opportunities in junior roles.

2 Year offering for Design Fundamentals allows TVET students to study the entire Certificate III Design Fundamentals over two years, Years 11 and 12. This qualification allows students to enter directly into Design courses at the Diploma level.

Other TVET courses have five or six units chosen from this qualification to align to the specific industry skills required.

Illustration

These skills introduce students to a historical perspective of illustration in visual communication along with exploring media and techniques over time.

Students explore traditional hand skills and visual exploration along with technical drawing techniques. They are also shown how to take initial concepts to computer aided drawings.

Game Graphics Design

These skills introduce students to the design process, taking an initial design to a finished concept. Students use advanced features of computer applications to produce graphics for environments and characters designed for digital game designs.

Students are shown how to design and maintain interactive content within a game environment as well as author interactive sequences to increase the interactivity of the gaming experience.

Students are shown the basic elements and principles of design principles to enable the game environments to be aesthetically pleasing and enjoyable to the user.

Graphic Design

These skills introduce students to following a design process when developing and creating Graphic Design work. Students are given the basic elements and principles required to take a brief from a client all the way through to the processes you need to follow to create the finished work.

Students use industry specific software to manipulate photographic images, create eye catching graphics and combine them in multiple page documents, presentations and packaging.

Interior Design

These skills introduce students to designing and decorating for interior spaces. Students learn the elements and principles of designing and decorating for residential and commercial spaces.

Students learn hands on practices of choosing the correct materials and furnishings through hands on lessons while applying their designs digitally through industry specific software.
